For three years OpenCUNY has worked with CUNY Graduate Center students to develop open-source environments for their courses, conferences, research, organizations, initiatives, and activism. This roundtable brings together the coordinators and participants of OpenCUNY to explore the benefits and challenges of fostering student-based participatory media. The roundtable will provide an overview of OpenCUNY's development, participatory governance, technological configuration, and future plans. We will also discuss a sample of participants' media projects.
